Date: October 17, 2017

Time: 10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.

Location: Neustadt Community Centre
183 Enoch St., Neustadt, ON (directions)

About This Event

In celebration of Small Business Week, we've partnered with WOWSA for a special lunch event about women, entrepreneurship, and the risks we take to pursue our passions.

The event theme stems from recent research and report by the Centre for Women in Politics and Public Leadership at Carleton University titled:

"A Force to Reckon With: Women, Entrepreneurship and Risk".

We'll be joined by an author of the report to speak about the research findings, which include a growing body of evidence that challenges the assumption that women entrepreneurs are risk-averse.

To round out the day, we'll also hear from local women entrepreneurs in a panel discussion on the risks they took when starting their businesses. You won't want to miss this lively discussion with thought leaders in WOWSA's business network.

This event includes full lunch, including salad, soup, sandwich, beverages, and dessert.
